AutoScanner is a function that scans your vehicle for you. It finds all of the factory key fobs (including remote's), and any factory keys you have replaced. As soon as it finds the first key, all of the other fobs (including remote's) will be added to the same folder. It will look up the phone number for the remote and then scan and record all of the fobs you have installed. AutoScanner is available for all AOEPEL vehicles. It will save you hours of manual work, and get you back on the road sooner. It's a very simple program that will do the job of most scanning programs out there, and also saves you the time. It creates a separate folder for each number you record. This is very useful for the following reasons: + + - If you have a key fob that has a different number than the one already on the computer, the program will record the old number before installing the new one. - If the number on the key fob has changed, the program will update the number on the computer, and not record the old number on the computer. - If you replace the key fob, the program will create a folder for the new number on the computer. + + + The second feature is the saving of the name of the key fob to the computer. It saves the name of the key fob

Coulson Art Works is a collective of artists based in Durham, North Carolina. For Coulson Night this December, we present the following show: "Let's Have A Party," by Nicole Chaffee Nicole Chaffee is an artist and curator who works mostly in photography. Her work has been shown in a variety of North American venues, including photo exhibitions at Gallery 18 and Akasha, New York; the Museum of Contemporary Photography, Chicago; and the Traveling Show of the Aperture Foundation. She is also the co-founder of the photo journal Agnes. Her work has been featured in the March/April issue of FIFTY-SOMETHING, RE:imagine, a special issue of SOFTIMAGE, and This Is Everything I Know About Photography. In 2007 she was selected by the Art Department of Graduate School at Clark University to exhibit work in the nationally touring project New Conditions: Recent Artists and Photographers Organized by the Clark University Art Department. In 2008 she was presented as a finalist for the Ursula Mamlok Writing Prize for Photojournalism. Chaffee received her MFA from Hunter College and earned her BFA from the Fashion Institute of Technology. "Let's Have a Party" is a personal look into Chaffee's life and work through an extensive range of color photographs. The text accompanying the photographs complements her work perfectly. It consists of fragments from her own poetry collection MFA: A Lyrical Memoir. Some of the text was written after a friend took her to a party she had been to and is, of course, more about that experience than it is about the party itself. But the photographs themselves are the opposite. They are subjective and emotional. They are candid and reflective and unabashedly personal.
